

Her Royal Guard, Canada

"The True North strong and free"

Canadians fought fiercely during the Seven Hour War, which shattered much of the Earth, but pockets of resistance endured. Among these, Canada stands strong with its organized resistance network, "Her Royal Guard," the primary cell coordinating efforts across the nation. Formed in the wake of government collapse and Dr. Wallace Breen's announcement of surrender to the Combine, the Guard is mainly made up of ex-military, police officers, and first responders who refused to give in.

Operating in both rural wilderness and urban ruins, Her Royal Guard uses disciplined military tactics to strike at Combine forces and infrastructure. Their missions target supply lines, transport hubs, and strategic points to disrupt the Combine's control, relentlessly fighting to protect Canada's remaining free territories and restore hope for the future.
